Not illustrated. 1921 Excerpt: .one of which has an admittance, $-G + jB$, and the other of which has an admittance, $Y_2 = G_2 + jB_2$, the total admittance, Y , of the combination is the vector sum of the two admittances Y_1 and Y_2 . $Y = Y_1 + Y_2$ (167) $G = G_1 + G_2 + j(B_1 + B_2)$ (168) This relation can be stated generally that When several impedances are in parallel, the total admittance of the combination is the vector sum of the separate admittances. 7, Resonance. In an a.c. circuit having both capacity and inductance in series, the reactance is zero whenever the capacity reactance is equal in magnitude to the inductive reactance, that is, when $X = X_c$ as can be seen from equation (136- b). The frequency at which this occurs is called the resonant frequency. At resonance the impedance has a minimum value and is equal to the resistance of the circuit. If this resistance is small a large current will flow as compared to the current flowing at other frequencies. The frequency f_r at which resonance occurs may be determined from the condition that $X = 0$ or A similar relation exists when inductance and capacity are in parallel in a circuit. Assume a condenser of reactance $-jX_c$ and a coil of reactance $+jX_L$ connected in parallel across a source of voltage E . The current then flowing through the condenser is $+jI_c$ and through the inductance $-jI_L$. The current supplied by the source I is $I = -jI_L - jI_c$ y C...
