

Decentralisation in Development

By S.N. Mishra

Mittal Publications, New Delhi, 1991. N.A. Book Condition: New. Viii+120pp Decentralization is an ideological principle associated with objectives of self-reliance, democratic decision making, popular participation in development and accountability of public officials to citizens. Thus decentralization is a political decision, and its implementation is a reflection of a country's political process. Development is the exploitation and management of the resource of nature in such a way that they are put under the control of man and are harnessed to serve his purpose. The management of such resources is called development administration which involves a mental revolution and is a carrier of invoking values. Ordinarily it involves the establishment of machinery for planning, economic growth and mobilizing and allocating resources to expand national income. It naturally involves achievement of progressive political, economic and social objectives. In the broader definitional framework, the present volume examines the decentralization in development in micro perspective. How inter-organizational linkages and voluntary organizations can play an effective role in decentralized development is the thrust of present study. Based on the micro analysis of the problem the author examines the important role played by Panchayati Raj Institutions, decentralized planning, rural delivery system and banking services in development. It...
