Criticism and defense of the United States Pharmacopoeia by both pharmacists and physicians characterized a get-together propaganda meeting held under the auspices of the New York branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association, with the cooperation of other local pharmaceutical bodies, in the New York College of Pharmacy Building, Monday evening, May 18th. The principal criticisms of the Pharmacopoeia and of the methods employed by the committee on revision were voiced by John Roemer, chairman of the propaganda committee of the New York State Pharmaceutical Association, who complained that this standard work had failed to recognize and keep pace with discoveries and achievements in medicine. Mr. Roemer also said that it was beyond all reason to ask both physicians and pharmacists to wait ten years for new revisions, and added that many physicians now ignore the Pharmacopoeia because it is of little use to them, especially...
